WINTER SUPPLY OF FUEL THREATENED

ANTHRACITE COAL STRIKE MAY AFFECT PRICES HERE

No Solution Between Miners and Operators Seen With Only Two Weeks for Agreement--Work Rushed At Pits To Store Supply--Owners Are Afraid of Public Boycott If Prices Are Raised.

Only two weeks remains before the country is to know definitely whether it is again to suffer interruption of its supply of hard coal for winter stove and furnace by a suspension in the 828 hard coal mines in northeastern Pennsylvania on the part of 158,000 mine workers.

Sunday night at respective headquarters of operators and miners now at loggerheads over renewal of the wage contract expiring August 31, no sign appeared of early reconciliation.

Tests of sentiment of various leaders indicate neither side is disposed to resume soon the negotiations broken off August 5, in Atlantic City.

The United Mine Workers "do not work without a contract," they say. Since the break at the seashore both operators and miners have even entrenched themselves in their announced opposition to each other.

Operators have reiterated the danger of public boycott if they let the price of hard coal go any higher. They have repeated that this prevents their assenting to any terms in the new contract, such as the request for a 10 per cent wage increase for contract miners and $1 a day additional for eleven-day workers, which would in any way increase present production cost.

As to the men's demand for the "check-off" the operators have said again in unmistakable terms they are equally adamant on this concession.

During the last week an announcement from a miners source disclosed that the union at present would not accept the government as a peace-maker unless prepared to consider its troubles in soft coal fields as well.

Operators seized upon this as support of their belief that the union all along had meant to make some settlement of the bituminous coal overproduction problem the price of peace after September 1. This in turn drew official denial from the union.

With the outlook unsettled the anthracite coal trade and public are reported to be taking emergency precautions.

Work at the mines is proceeding at top speed, in order to store up every extra pound of coal possible in advance of any unlooked for developments a fortnight hence.

Anthracite carrying roads indicate increasingly heavy shipments of this commodity, particularly to outlying sections of the consuming territory where any cessation in supply would be felt the first.

Meanwhile augmented fleets of retail coal trucks rushing bulging loads to householders' cellars and to the "coal pockets" of large industrial users are reported familiar sights on the streets of larger eastern cities.

ROY CRISSINGER DROWNS.

Roy Crissinger, the eleven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crissinger, of Columbus, formerly of this city, lost his life in the Scioto river last Thursday while in swimming. The body was not recovered until Friday.

The funeral services were held Saturday. Mrs. William Crissinger and Philip Crissinger and son, Isaac, of this city, attended the funeral.

Captain W. B. Davis, of Williamsport, went to Columbus today to visit his wife at Grant hospital, where she has been a patient for several weeks recovering from a fractured hip. He expects to take her home this week.

MYKRANTZ TO GET CONTROL DRUG STORES

Dollings Subsidiary Sold to Morris Resler Year Ago are Repurchased.

The chain of Mykrantz drug stores, consisting of 27 retail dispensaries, most of which are in Columbus, was purchased by Frank F. Mykrantz and his two sons, F. M. and J. M. Mykrantz, from Morris Resler.

Details of the transaction, which was closed, were not made known, but it is understood the consideration was considerably in excess of the $125,000 which Resler paid in obtaining the properties from the receivers of the Mykrantz Co. Dollings subsidiary, less than a year ago.

Mr. Mykrantz said the policy of the concern will not be changed. He has been in charge of the stores for 10 years, having been president of the company under the Dollings regime and being retained in a similar capacity when Resler took over the concern.

Mr. Conners now makes his residence in Florida.

Everybody will be invited and the picnic will be made the means of fostering Republican ideals and ambitions of interest and importance in the Ohio political arena.

The chief speaker is expected to be Congressman Theodore E. Burton, of Cleveland, who will give information acquired during his recent European trip. Senators Fess and Willis and the entire congressional delegation of Ohio, together with the legislative membership also have been invited.

The congressman will discuss the plans, the possibilities and advantages and on this promise the club will start its building and expansion activities.

A GREAT SHOW.

Few Ohio people realize that more than 5,000 head of livestock will be shown at the Diamond Jubilee anniversary of state fair, August 31 to September 5. In fact, this total was exceeded last year, when 235 head of horses were shown, 1600 cattle, 1500 swine and 2,000 sheep.

Mrs. W. W. Stokes, of Dayton and Mrs. J. French, of Springfield, Illinois are guests of Mrs. Sarah Crow.

OLD STUDENTS TAKE AWARDS IN COLLEGE

Columbus, O., Aug. 17 (UP).—More men and women past 30 are attending Ohio State university since the state law requires higher standards for teachers' certification.

The increase in enrollment is principally in the college of education and the graduate school, according to figures from the registrar's office.

No increase greater than the proportional growth was noted in the rest of the university devoted to the professions and science.

As a result of this registration of the older students, scholarship awards are being made almost entirely to the older students.

HONEY YIELD IS LARGEST IN HISTORY

Delphos, O., Aug. 17.—Ohio bee keepers held their annual field meeting here today at Waterworks park.

Fred Leininger, Delphos, president of the association gave the address; Fred W. Muth, Cincinnati, followed on "how little we know about our own business."

This year's honey production was estimated to exceed 10,000 pounds, the largest honey yield in this history of the honey industry.

SAILORS IDLE SCHOOL BOYS TAKE PLACES

Cleveland, O., Aug. 17 (UP).—Lives of sailors and ships are being endangered on Lake Erie for the sake of economy, E. J. Sullivan, secretary of the Lake Seamen's union charged today.

In order to save a few hundred dollars in ship operation each month ship owners employ inexperienced college boys as deck hands and water tenders. They are worked twelve hours a day and seven days a week in lieu of the eight hour shift of the regular seamen.

As a result of this system, Sullivan charged 2000 sailors are idle in Cleveland this season.

THIS IN OHIO THINK TEDDY IS PRESIDENT

Peddler Told Old Men About World War, But They Did Not Believe it.

Deputy Sheriff John Furber called at a secluded home in an isolated farm in central Belmont county late Friday and met two elderly men who told him in the course of a conversation they believed Theodore Roosevelt was still president of the United States.

"Teddy is a great man," one remarked, "and the only time we ever expect to leave this farm is to vote for him."

The deputy sheriff was amazed to hear the men profess never to have seen an automobile which he tried to describe to them. He was riding a horse over the briar-clogged farm when he came upon the pair.

They also told him they had never seen an electric light, hearing with open mouthed wonder about electricity and then declaring with finality they did not believe "light kin go thru a wire."

The shabbily dressed pair said they had no desire for human companionship and they scoffed at the idea of visiting a city, which they held to be the works of the devil.

The nearest neighbor, who lives a mile away, said he had never more than "passed the time of day with them." The two said they lived solely on the products of their farm.

Asked if they had heard about the world war, they said a peddler had told them something about it years ago, but they thought he was making himself interesting and paid no attention to his story.

STATE FAIR TREASURE TO BE DONATED

Manufacturers' Products Will be on Display and Given to Patrons.

More than 400 Ohio manufacturers have donated products of their plants for display at the Treasure Chest at Ohio State fair, August 31 to September 5. The articles contributed by these concerns will be given away to fair patrons during State fair week.

The Treasure Chest will be located in a big tent on a prominent location at the grounds. Here will be displayed every article that has been donated for public distribution. The Treasure Chest will, in a sense be a display of representative articles manufactured in Ohio and those attending the Diamond Jubilee anniversary of the founding of the State fair will be able thereby to gain some idea of the industrial progress made by this state during the 75 years since the fair was established.

A wide range of articles has been contributed for Treasure Chest. It includes everything from canned foods to electric light plants. Every item is to be given away during State fair week.

BIG MERGER OF COAL COMPANIES IS ANTICIPATED

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 14.—(UP.)—Developments in the proposed $500,000,000 merger of West Virginia-Kentucky coal companies hinged today upon a coal operators' conference underway in New York City.

J. E. Johnson, secretary of the Hazard Coal Operators' Exchange, which proposed the consolidation, said the New York conferences were expected to make some definite announcement tonight.

The consolidation, broached for economic reasons, would involve valuable bituminous and anthracite properties with an annual production of 150,000,000 tons and employing thousands of men.

Johnson has mailed questionnaires to the operators asking them to ratify or reject the plan. Unanimous approval was expected, he said.

W. D. Dudley, president of the Kentucky River Coal Company, is presiding over the New York conference.

Health and HomePROPER FOOD FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

The age during which children are attending school—may aptly be called "The Dangerous Age." It is the period of rapid growth and every care should be taken to insure the child of a normal and healthy body. The idea of eating only fit and wholesome foods should be early impressed on the younger members of every family in order to protect them against later ill health and its accompanying unhappiness. If the utmost care is not taken in the diet that is used by children cases of food poisoning, indigestion and kindred ailments may result.

And milk, being the chief item in the diets of most children, should be carefully guarded. It is, because of its nature, prone to infection if exposed to germs and may soon become unfit for use. Wherever there is the slightest reason for doubt as to its purity and food value, steps should be taken to insure the sterility and the fitness of milk intended for consumption by children. Many mothers have adopted the excellent practice of using milk that is absolutely pure and sterile and free from any germs or bacteria. The most satisfactory, as well as the safest milk used in preparing food for the growing child is evaporated milk. It is sterile, and therefore safe. It is more digestible than market milk. Its uniformity, convenience and cost are qualities that recommend it.

The following dishes are well suited to the needs of the growing child; they are easily digested and very nourishing:

Caramel Custard.

1 cup evaporated milk diluted (caramelized) with 2 tsp. sugar
1 cup water 1/4 tsp. salt
3 eggs 1/2 tsp. vanilla

Scald the diluted milk. Caramelize the sugar and add to milk to dissolve. Beat eggs slightly, add sugar, salt, and flavoring and combine with scalded milk. Pour into custard cups and set in a pan of hot water and cook in a moderate oven. When done, a knife blade run in the center will come out clean.

Fish Chowder.

1 pint raw fish cut in 1-inch dice 3 cups boiling water
5 small potatoes, sliced 1 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1 cup water
2 onions chopped fine 1 cup water
1/4 pound fat salt pork, sliced 6 crackers

Fry out the salt pork. When brown, remove pieces of pork and put fish, potatoes, and onions in kettle. Cover with boiling water. Simmer until potatoes are tender. Add the milk and cook 5 minutes longer. Season with salt and pepper. Just before serving add the crackers.

KEEPING WELLRAT-BITE FEVER

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

RAT bites are not common in this country. Although the rat population is said to be at least as large, if not larger than the human, the two apparently come together seldom. In the country, where numerous rats are found under barns, corn cribs and wood sheds, and where children go barefoot at least part of the year, rat bites are probably much more frequent than is usually supposed.

In Japan, where the houses are of loose construction, where every one sleeps on mats on the floor and where many of the people go barefooted all the year round, rat bites are much more common than in this country. The doctors in Japan have found that there is a definite disease which may be gotten from a rat bite, just as hydrophobia can be gotten from a dog bite. They call it sodoku.

Any kind of a bite, so far as the wound is concerned, is like any other kind of a stabbing or tearing wound. Its seriousness depends largely on the kind of a weapon that makes it. A stab wound with a new, clean, bright knife is not as dangerous as the same wound made with an old, jagged, dirty knife. But animals' teeth are seldom clean. Our old English saying is "as clean as a hound's tooth." But hounds or any other kinds of dogs very seldom have clean teeth. They may have hydrophobia, if they have been bitten by a mad dog. Even if they do not have this worst of dog diseases, they have in their mouths and on their teeth germs of various kinds, which stay in the wound and produce infection, causing pain, swelling and sometimes fever.

Rats also generally have some kind of germ in their mouths, so that the rat bites usually become infected and may cause fever. In about ten to twenty days after the bite, the patient, often a child, will complain of headache, weakness and muscular pains. The bite, even if it has apparently healed, becomes swollen, painful and a reddish blue color. The glands or "kernels" nearest the bite become swollen and tender. If the bite is on the foot, the glands in the groin are swollen; if on the hands, the glands in the arm pit. Fever, nausea, vomiting follow and, in severe cases, the child may become delirious. The fever lasts several days, then disappears for from two to six days and reappears. A bluish red rash appears on the body. The disease may last weeks or months. Most cases eventually recover. Treatment consists in cauterizing the bite with carbolic acid and in the injection of arsenphenamine.

HOPÍ INDIANS BOW AT VENUS' SHRINEIdol Called "Talatumsi, Elder Sister of the Dawn."

Venus, goddess of the ancient Romans, is venerated also by the modern Hopi Indians of the American Southwest, though in a guise that would hardly be recognized by her classic votaries. Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, chief of the bureau of American ethnology, tells of this interesting cult in his account of the use of idols in Hopi worship, in the forthcoming annual report of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington.

She is known to the Indians as Talatumsi, the Elder Sister of the Dawn. Her image, rudely carved of wood, and wrapped in a ceremonial blanket, is enshrined in a hollowed-out boulder with a flat rock, sealed in with clay for a door. This door is removed in November every fourth year, when the idol is taken out and carried to the top of the mesa and rites performed near it. The image is regarded with special reverence, and except for the quadrennial service, is kept securely sealed in its shrine.

The image of Talatumsi is only one of the many sacred objects of the Hopi. Unlike the Indians of the eastern United States, who made few images, these natives of the desert make and reverence numerous idols, though they do not regard them as gods but only as images of the gods above the cloud or under the earth. Some of the idols are simple natural objects, like pieces of petrified log or meteoric stones; others are more or less elaborately carved animal or human figures of wood or stone. Many of the stone images are very old, and are held in especial awe.

Dr. Fewkes is of the opinion that the custom of carving was not much developed until after the coming of the Spanish padres. Though the Indians declined to be converted, they adopted the idea of having statues in their own holy places, in addition to the simpler natural objects they had revered before that time.

Many of the images are used by the shamans, or medicine men, in exorcising disease. One type of idol, called a "heart twister," is used when the trouble is supposed to be located in the heart. Most of the heart twisters are made of stone or wood, deeply carved in a spiral pattern, but there is at least one in use among the Hopi that is made of a fossil sea shell.—From Science Service.

Obsession of DeathMade Empires Great

We have taken a brief and cursory glance at a civilization (Egyptian) which, though its qualities were but mediocre, endured for more than four thousand years. It is, with that of China, the longest that history has ever known. For 40 centuries, while the rest of the world was given over to barbarism, massacre, brigandage, rapine and monstrous disorder, it procured for the people who lived under it a happiness and tranquility, security and peace that might well be envied by the people of today who rank among the most fortunate.

What were the forces that kept this civilization together? Obviously and above all, the priestly oligarchy that held the reins, an oligarchy of wise and thoughtful men who jealously guarded their secret; while above them were kings not only by divine right but actually divine, the monarch not being merely the representative of the god on earth, but the god himself, and so concretely and actually god that not one, himself to begin with, for one instant doubted his divinity, of which he was so sincerely, so deeply convinced that he worshipped his own image and did it obeisance.

But there were other peoples who were governed by prudent oligarchies and kings who held themselves to be gods, and that nevertheless did not last long. In the Egyptian people, as in the Chinese, side by side with the divine authority that strengthened the social edifice from its base to its crown there existed a certain force that never left them, an authority humbler than the other but more effective, inasmuch as it permeated, saturated, the entire organism; and this was the obsession of death and the adoration of the corpse. Strangely enough, wherever the thought of death is uppermost, persistent, and paramount, life takes a firmer grip, quickens, multiplies, flourishes. The two civilizations that endured the longest, that were the most stable and tranquil of all that are known to us, had the same ideal: a coffin.—Maurice Maeterlinck, in the Forum.

Darned Sock Passes

A Detroit laundryman offers what he says is the final bit of conclusive evidence that the present generation is decadent and that modern family life is demoralized.

"You don't see many darned socks in a laundry any more," he said. "If you counted the comparative number of holes in the stockings that have come in here over a period of years and plotted the totals in statistical curves you would have an exact barometer of the spread of feminism."

"Seriously speaking, the passing of the darned sock does indicate the arrival of a new period of domestic economy. Any laundryman will testify that the silk age has come to stay. Judy O'Grady and the colonel's lady now wear the same thing to their skin."—Detroit News.

By A. J. GUNDERSON
(Research Bureau—Insecticide Division,
The Sherwin-Williams Co.)

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost each season in the poultry business by the ravages of greatordes of chicken mites, stick-tight fleas and blue-bugs in chicken coops. When once these fellows gain any definite headway it is almost impossible to stop them without destroying the entire flock and house. On this account numerous poultry raisers, according to government statistics, have been forced to discontinue business with large financial losses.

These parasites of the chicken house thrive during the hot summer months when chickens are in or entering the moulting period. They cause slow and stunted growth as well as death in young chickens and reduced flesh and egg production in mature birds.

Method of Attack
Chicken mites are small grayish red mites about the size of a pinhead when filled with blood. They hide away during the day in cracks and crevices throughout the hen house migrating to the roosting birds at night to suck blood.

Stick-tight fleas are small, hard-sided, hard bodied creatures that appear as dark areas about the eyes, comb and wattles. Fowl-ticks or blue-bugs are closely related to mites but are always larger, easily seen and have a thick, leathery skin. They are flat, egg-shaped and dark brown in color. These habits are essentially the same as those of the chicken mite.

How to Kill Pests
Fortunately these parasites can be exterminated from poultry houses and coops by the use of carbolic-oil applied as a spray, or painted on. The first step is to burn all boxes, coops and boards. Burn old nesting material and clean out the floor and roosts. Then apply a heavy drenching spray or heavy brushing of carbolic-oil. This oil soaks into the wood without leaving a greasy residue to soil the feet, feathers and eggs of the birds.

Poultry parasites are hardy and can live from four to five months after chickens have been removed from the hen houses unless a strong destroyer is applied.

Night Air Beneficial

Night air is especially healthful. In spite of the theories of our grandparents, it is just as healthful as day air. It is even more purifying, for it is less laden with dust and humidity. Cold air, moreover, according to recent experiments, has been found to be even more health-giving than warm air.

Duck Refuge

The Winneshiek bottom preserve is a 300-acre tract of land along the Mississippi river. Congress in 1924 passed a law preserving this land from drainage for a breeding and feeding place for ducks. There have been two or three instances where land in this vicinity has been drained for agricultural purposes and found absolutely useless. It was through the efforts of the Izaak Walton league that this land was preserved.

Poor Spellers, Take Heart.

The poor speller should receive comfort from the recent words of a professor of English in a local university. "The perfect speller is born, not made," he said. "One frequently finds persons of great erudition who have trouble spelling such a simple word, for example, as 'rabbit.' Certain others seem to have a gift for spelling, even without a knowledge of the rules to guide them. Why that is, I cannot say. It is closely akin, I think, to what is known as an ear for music or a peculiarity retentive memory for figures. I dare say it can even be inherited. Spelling is one case in which education plays but a minor part."—New York Sun.

Printer's Errors

There is a story of a German printer's wife who surreptitiously altered the passage that her husband should be (Herr) lord so as to make him be her fool. Perhaps the best of all printers' errors was that in which a printer had to announce to the world that intoxication is folly, and altered it into the more genial statement that "Intoxication is jolly." Theodore Beza was stated to have gone to sea in a Canadian vessel. The printer altered this to "Canadian" vessel. There is also that reference to the "battle-scarred warrior," which became "bottle-scarred warrior!"

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Log as Motor Vehicle

"Around the World in a Log" was the unique title of a motor vehicle which passed through Cascade Locks, Ore., recently, on a world tour to advertise the Pacific coast, says the Portland Oregonian. The body of the car was a huge Douglas fir which had been cut, bored and hewed by the men in charge, C. E. Cave and J. A. Nutter. After this preliminary work they spent 13 months in equipping it into a modern apartment. The log or car is 22 feet long and 7 feet 7 inches in diameter, and scaled 8,716 feet of lumber.

The car is equipped with electric lights, hot and cold water, shower bath, beds, a breakfast table and built-in seats, a sink and built-in kitchenette and also built-in dressers and linen closets and even a library. The truck, including the body, weighs 14,000 pounds. The men in charge expect to go to New York by way of Salt Lake city and Omaha and Chicago. Before returning to Oregon they will tour Mexico, Central America and Canada.

A LOVER OF NATURE

"What we need," said the loudly-dressed woman, "is to get closer to nature. We have too much artificiality. For my part I simply adore nature. That's why I got my husband to buy a country place."

"Oh, dear, no; certainly not. We won't be able to go there for two or three years yet. It will require all that time for the landscape gardener to get it in shape for us."

SARGASSO IS SEA OF MANY SECRETS

Expedition Will Explore Mysterious Region.

As if an enormous giant had put his finger into the sea and stirred it round, the entire North Atlantic ocean slowly revolves in the direction of the clock's hands.

In the center is the Sargasso sea, a gigantic collection of floating islands, made of seaweed and inhabited by countless living things.

Nobody knows how Herodotus, in ancient times, came by the alarming stories he told of this mysterious region, for it is only during recent years that it has been properly charted.

When Columbus and his men were drawn into this oval-shaped vortex, his ship remained out of control for 15 days, and the crew thought they were condemned to perish in a watery prison, closely guarded by seaweed barriers for 200,000 square miles. But a strong wind luckily carried the ship to safety.

Supported in the water by small air balloons, the feathery weeds of Sargasso are mostly olive-brown in color, with blotches of white. The chief source of supply has been proved to be the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea.

Sailors do not like this strange tract which floats, almost like land, on the bosom of the Atlantic. It is reputed to be the home of barbarous fish and the hiding place of mysterious monsters. Animals drifting about on the surface of the sea, with only the scattered cover of moving seaweed, are exposed to many dangers, not only from the birds always hovering above, but from hungry fish lurking in the patches of uncovered sea, which is the bluest in the world.

To protect themselves, all the living creatures imitate, in a remarkable way, the color of their floating home. One grotesque little animal is conspicuous owing to the disproportionate size of its head and jaws, and resembles the frog fish, sometimes seen near British coasts.

Making its nest of seaweed bound together by long cords of its own manufacture, this singular creature combines all the characteristics of an animal, a fish, and a bird.

A short-tailed crab of the shell-less type swarms on the Sargasso weed and is blotched with white to match the light patches on its surroundings. These and many more peculiar creatures will be examined by Professor Beebe, of New York, who recently set out to explore this little-known region.

A secret ambition of the expedition is to capture a monster squid, a terrifying fish of the cuttlefish family, with black eyes at least 12 inches in diameter and a body 80 feet in length. The body of these giants, one of which the explorers hope to capture, is wrapped in a loose mantle, from an opening in which emerges the evil-looking head with its sharp, parrot-like beak.

This Sargasso monster is the tiger of the ocean, and, like its striped counterpart on land, is said to kill even when not hungry—for the sheer pleasure of killing.

Victoria Invested Wisely

Through the good advice of Disraeli, her chief adviser, Queen Victoria of England, invested in Suez canal stock and was thus enabled eventually to leave additional millions to her children. She also was one of the original owners of a share in the New River Water company which provided the water supply for London. The water shares, originally worth a pound ($5), enhanced in value to where they were worth millions, and even the richest of others like the Rothschilds were forced to be content later with a sixteenth or a thirty-second of a share.

Quake Made Trouble

All was peaceful and quiet Saturday night in the Springfield police station when Patrolman Clark, who was entering something in the police blotter, suddenly shouted: "For the love of Mike, Mitchell, stop shaking the table. How do you suppose I can write?" Patrolman Mitchell indignantly denied that he was shaking the table and accused Clark of being responsible. The argument was waxing warm, with each denying and accusing, when the telephone rang and gave them their first inkling that an earthquake was the cause of the table's strange behavior.—Boston Globe.

China's Trade in Bones

For many years, the economical Chinese have put animal bone to good use for various ornamental and practical articles and for fertilizer, but the traffic in this commodity in recent times has greatly increased so that now they are said to be importing large quantities. During the first six months of 1923 Shanghai alone imported nearly 1,500 tons of cow bone valued at more than $238,000, principally for tile-game makers. In 1922, China exported more than $1,000,000 worth of bone.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

PLANNING TO MEET IN PARIS IN 1927

Holding of the proposed national convention of the American Legion in Paris, France, in 1927 was brought several steps nearer reality, it was indicated at national headquarters of the Legion at Indianapolis, following important recent developments in the matter.

The Trunk Line Passenger association has offered to grant to all Legionnaires a round-trip ticket from any point in America to the port of embarkation for a one-way fare. John J. Wicker, Jr., of Richmond, Va., chairman of the France convention travel committee, predicts that other railroad associations will follow suit.

Assurances have been received through diplomatic channels that the French government will welcome Legionnaires with sincere pleasure. Mr. Wicker has reported. Word has come from officials of Paris post of the Legion that the people and officials of the city of Paris will co-operate to make the gathering a success.

The last week in September, 1927, has been recommended by the committee as the best time for holding the convention. Final decision in the matter rests with the national convention, the governing body of the Legion.

At the meeting at which Mr. Wicker made his report to the national executive committee, Garland W. Powell, director of the National Americanism commission of the Legion, presented his resignation. Mr. Powell, who became assistant director in 1921 and director in 1922 took the lead in campaigns for employment of veterans in 1921, for restricted immigration, for better education in all its phases, for Americanization work, against illiteracy, against revolutionary radicalism and extreme pacifism. He conducted the American education weeks and the Legion's national essay contests.

Mr. Powell, whose home is at Cumberland, Md., and who was a captain pilot in the American aviation forces, resigned to become identified with the organization and administration of Woodrow Wilson Memorial university at Valdosta, Ga.

Frank Clay Cross, of the faculty of the Colorado School of Mines at Golden, Colo., succeeded Mr. Powell. He achieved fame through the nationally known "opportunity school" in Denver. He was chairman of the Americanism committee of the department of Colorado during the past year. He served overseas for 14 months.

At the same meeting adequate provision in the federal budget for maintaining the naval ratio of 5-5-3 fixed by the Washington conference was urged. Provision for the proper defense of the Hawaiian islands by fortifying them and improving Pearl Harbor and also for an increase of 4,000 in the enlisted personnel of the navy was recommended by the naval affairs committee of the Legion, headed by E. E. Spafford of New York.

In a report submitted by Reed G. Landis of Chicago for the aeronautics committee and adopted by the executive committee, support was pledged to Postmaster General Harry S. New in his reported refusal to contract for airplane mail service between the United States and South America with any company financed by foreign capital or operated by subjects of foreign countries. Germans are financing and operating a concern which has been attempting to obtain such a contract between Key West, Fla., and South America, according to information laid before the committee.

THE RHYTHMATS
Too much can not be said of The Rhythmats, the wonderful orchestra that played for the C. A. C. jitney dance last Saturday night. This orchestra, composed of eight splendid musicians, all artists, and headed by their director, Paul H. Kleinke, entertained the dancers as they have not been entertained in Circleville for a long time. Playing all the latest and newest dance selections in perfect time and rhythm, their excellent music was thoroughly enjoyed by all in attendance. It was a rare treat for dance lovers and spectators.

About three hundred people danced to The Rhythmats' perfect music, visitors were there from all the surrounding towns. The C. A. C. dance committee has been very fortunate in securing this orchestra for a return engagement, they will play here again on the night of Tuesday, September 1, for the big Carnival dance to be given especially for the young people who will soon begin to leave for their different schools and colleges.

AMUSEMENTS

While holding all of the intense dramatic appeal of the stage play, the screen version of "Cheaper to Marry" which is now playing at the Met theater, is far more colorful than Samuel Shipman's original story.

This is because the motion picture takes advantage of wired latitudes, and Robert Z. Leonard, in making this picturization for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has brought a lavish production of society and near society life to the screen.

In addition to an exceptional cast, Leonard brings into this film noted dancers for his cafe scenes, and fifty of the most beautiful bathing girls in California to the sequence devoted to showing intimate happenings in an exclusive women's athletic club. Limitations of the speaking stage made such elaborate settings impossible.

The cast includes Lewis S. Stone, Conrad Nagel, Paulette Duval, Marguerite de la Motte, Louise Fazenda, Claude Gillinkwater and Richard Wayne. As the cynical Jim Knight, who does not believe in marriage, Lewis Stone adds to his fame as an actor. Paulette Duval of "Monsieur Beaucaire" fame, is seen as a modern vampire for the first time, gowned in beautiful creations and jewels. Conrad Nagel always a capable actor, plays his role with rare accomplishment, as does Miss de la Motte, seen opposite Nagel for the first time.

The comedy is handled most admirably by Louise Fazenda and Mr. Gillinkwater, while Richard Wayne is the "other man" in the love affair between Mr. Stone and Miss Duval. Frederick and Fanny Hatton are given credit for bringing this powerful Shipman indictment against social radicalism to the screen without a change in the original plot. Alice D. G. Miller did the continuity.

DISCOVERED AGAIN
(This claim is now made that a China man discovered America one thousand years before Columbus.)

A paleolithic person found, Ten million years ago, this date, That he could walk on solid ground Across the Bering Strait, Southward he wandered to a clime Where flowers grew and birdies hovered; America, about that time I reckon, was discovered.

Eon on era wheeled and passed With various topographic changes; Here sank the land, and there it massed

In mighty mountain ranges. And then, a million years ago, Some people wandered out of Spain And strolling into Mexico Discovered us again.

Invading mound builders drove out The cave men; then the Mayas came And put these ancient tribes to rout— It was an endless game, Black men and brown discovered it, And red men brought them both to woe— The yellow peril had its bit A thousand years ago.

And then there was a Nordic blond That came from Iceland o'er the sea Then Colon came from where beyond The Alps lies Italy. And yet we raise a merry din And fatuously pick and probe The most discovered country in The well-known globe!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Didn't Exactly Order Speeders to "Desist"

As for Irish yarns—they never cease to beguile the world, Celtic or non-Celtic. A volume of them, such as Henry Robinson's "Further Memories of Irish Life," can always be trusted to furnish examples of the volatile or inconsistent spirit—according to the viewpoint—of the Irish. On the word of Sir Henry, Ireland was a paradise for motorists when motor-ing first became the rage and he proves his contention with a story of an incident watched by himself and Col. Oliver Nugent.

There were two policemen on duty at the roadside, and Nugent asked them what they were doing, as each had a notebook in his hands and wore an air of intense responsibility.

"We're watching out," they said, "for to see that them motorists isn't exceeding the legal limit."

At the time the cars were going "all out" along the level stretch of road, few of them under 40 miles an hour, and many of them far beyond it. Whereupon Nugent, much amused, asked the sergeant what he would do in the possible event of seeing one that appeared to be exceeding the limit.

"We'd order him to desist," said the sergeant.

"But supposing he didn't desist," said Nugent, "what then?"

"We'd arrest him," said the sergeant.

At that moment a roar was heard down the road and a dark-blue torpedo-shaped racer, with driver and mechanic in leather skull-caps, crouching low in their seats, came along at about 70 miles an hour—a flying blur of blue on the highway.

It seemed that here at last was a case where the "order to desist" must inevitably be given. They waited with great curiosity for the result. But not a bit of it!

"Good for ye," yelled the excited constable at the flying car; and the sergeant, making a speaking-trumpet of his hands, shrieked out encouragingly: "Ye're the besht yet!"

Discovery May Mean Much

Dr. Herbert M. Evans, distinguished scientist of the University of California, has made a discovery in glandular nutrition by which he hopes to demonstrate the effect of "vitamine X" in regulating growth and prolonging life. In his research laboratories at Berkeley Doctor Evans has carried out experiments on rats, tadpoles and guinea pigs that have produced startling results. Much attention has been given to the little gland at the base of the brain called the hypophysis, or pituitary gland. In discussing "vitamine X," the scientist said: "We were astonished to find that if we treated animals with this fluid, provided it was not given by the mouth, but under the skin, or in body cavities, where it would not come in contact with the digestive tissues, and was administered daily rather than at infrequent intervals, we could turn normal animals into giants. The next point which arises is just how this will concern the practical problems of human welfare.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Ancient Works of Art

A vase with a secret, a fifteenth-century Chinese production, with a "secret" design, the only known specimen of the period of the Emperor Hung Chih (1488-1505), has just been acquired by the British museum. It is decorated with green dragons, but the "secret" design, almost invisible at first sight, represents rocks standing out of waves, and was traced very finely and faintly with a needle stylus before the vase was glazed. "There is no special significance so far as I know in these secret designs," said an official of the museum. "It is simply a feature of Chinese art." The carved figure of a bull found in Babylon, and believed to be about 5,000 years old, minus legs, arms and tail, has also been added to the collection. It is thought that it was used for religious purposes.

Death Penalty for Laziness

The Incas were a great agricultural people, and the remains of their canals and aqueducts may be seen in many places along the coasts of Peru. They had no rich and no poor. The state did everything for its subjects, interfering in all things, even in the affairs of private life. There were three classes—the royal family, the priests, and the people. The chief priest and the head of the army were drawn from the royal house. Every man of twenty-one and every girl of eighteen was compelled to marry. To every child a piece of land was given—a boy getting more than a girl. All the work was done by the people and every person—man, woman, and child—had his or her allotted share of work to do. No one was permitted to be overworked, but no one dare be lazy under penalty of death.

First "Athenaeum"

The "Athenaeum" was a temple in ancient Athens, sacred to Pallas Athene. There the poets and philosophers were accustomed to declaim and recite their compositions. There was also an athenaeum at Rome erected by the Emperor Hadrian in 125 A. D. It was founded for the study of poetry and rhetoric, had a regular staff of professors and existed as the Schola Romana until the Fifth century. Similar institutions existed at Constantinople, Lyons and Nîmes. The word "atheneum" has been applied in later times to any association or building devoted to literary or artistic purposes.—Kansas City Star.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Jewelry valued at $50,000 was seized today by government agents who opened a safety deposit box leased by Kitty Gilhooley, whose arrest a few days ago led to the seizure of narcotics valued at $150,000. Her arrest also led to the investigation of Colonel Will Gray Beach, chief of narcotic agents here, arrested later for bartering narcotics for various kinds of merchandise, much of it stolen.

The former narcotic chief, out on bond, charged with conspiracy and violation of the anti-narcotic act, declined to comment on the seizure. Mrs. Gilhooley, who has been in jail since special intelligence agents raided her apartment, was released on bonds of $50,000.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

MR. F. L. FICKARDT:
All spring I have been having trouble with my flock, both young and old. During July I lost about 100. Quite a number had LIMBER NECK or PTOMAIN. About August 1st, I began use of your DROPS, and I can say the results fully justified your statements. One case of Limber-Neck was too sick to take the medicine. I gave it some with a dropper, thinking then it was a waste of time, but the next morning it was still around and finally got well. The rest of my flock straightened out and are doing well now.

BEHIND SCREEN
IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Aug. 13.—What's become of Rex Ingram?

The brilliant director of "The Four Horsemen," "Trifling Women" and "The Prisoner of Zenda," threatened, a couple of years ago, to "quit the movies and live on the edge of Sahara."

Hollywood knows Rex hasn't quit the movies because reports come drifting in that the temperamental Irishman is still shooting away at Blasco Ibanez's story, "Mare Nostrum," in which Alice Terry and Tony Moreno have the leads.

Neither is Rex on the edge of the Sahara. Far from it. He is located in the very "wet" regions of Paris and Rome.

But it looks like Ingram is out to outdo "Ben Hur" in length of time in production and costs.

When will Rex come back to Hollywood? When will the picture be finished? Will it be worthy of the Ingram of "The Four Horsemen?"

These are questions bandied about the Club Montmartre, where moviedom congregates at meal times.

Bebe Daniels is back in Hollywood.

Bebe, now one of the highest-salaried stars in the Paramount galaxy, has been brought back to Southern California to get the benefit of the studio organization here. New York has not added materially to Bebe's popularity or fame as a movie idol.

Now William K. Howard has the task of directing Bebe and of developing the long latent talents of the piquant star.

Howard has started shooting on "Martinique," the Lawrence Eyre stage play. It is said the company may go to the South Seas for location.

ORCHARD
COVER CROPS

Cover crops are grown in cultivated orchards to check fall growth of the trees so that the new wood will ripen before freezing and to add humus and nitrogen to the soil and prevent it from washing. Soybeans, vetch, rye and oats proved the best cover crops tested at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Soybeans seeded early in August make a fair growth before frost but are to be preferred as a summer, rather than a fall cover crop. Vetch seeded with rye makes a good winter cover, but must be turned under early the following spring.

Rye alone or with vetch makes one of the best cover crops. The chief objection to rye is that it often makes too much growth before it can be plowed under in the spring, thus robbing the trees of much needed soil moisture.

Wheat can be used in place of rye but makes a smaller growth. Oats seeded about the first of August makes a good growth before frost. Buckwheat is also a satisfactory fall cover crop.

Wow! How They Ride 'Em and Bust 'Em

(Copyright by R. R. Doubleday.)

It's thrilling enough when some hardened buckaroo sets sail on a notorious "outlaw," but when the girls come out of the chutes on the upper story of seasoned buckers—you hold your breath and chew your silkie all to shreds, that's all.

Mabel Strickland, Bonnie McCarroll, Fox Hastings, Ruth Roach, Bee Kirnan, Mildred Douglas, Florence Fenton and a lot more of 'em will compete at the Chicago Rounding and World's Championship Rodeo August 15 to 23. They are all real cowhands from the great open spaces where men are mere men and women are governors.

Mabel Strickland is the present world's best around cowgirl. She rides the bronks, ropes the steers and wins her share of the relay races. Sometimes she gets piled—hard. But she takes her chances with the men.

Bonnie McCarroll is the world's champion girl bronk rider. She won the title at Cheyenne in 1923, at Tex Austin's New York and London Rodeos in '23 and '24, and last year annexed the Gordon Seifridge trophy at London.

The other girls who will be here, according to Tex Austin, director of the Chicago contest, do some performing in the relays, steer riding, trick roping and bronk riding events, and they make a hatful of thrills.

Whoopee! Hook 'Im Cow

(Copyright by R. R. Doubleday.)

Steer bulldogging has been called the most hazardous of sports. As a matter of fact, none of the bulldoggers who will appear at Tex Austin's Chicago Rounding, scheduled for the big Grant Park Stadium August 15 to 23, have complained about life insurance salesmen camping on their trail.

However, it is all very simple. And in case you have a secret hankering to tackle it, here are a few directions: A Texas longhorn is driven into the chute. You stand by on the fastest cow-horse you can find. When the signal is given, the chute door pops open, and out rushes a long, rangy steer composed of concentrated extract of beef and alternating current. The second the critter passes the white line about 20 yards out in front, he's yours. Try and get him!

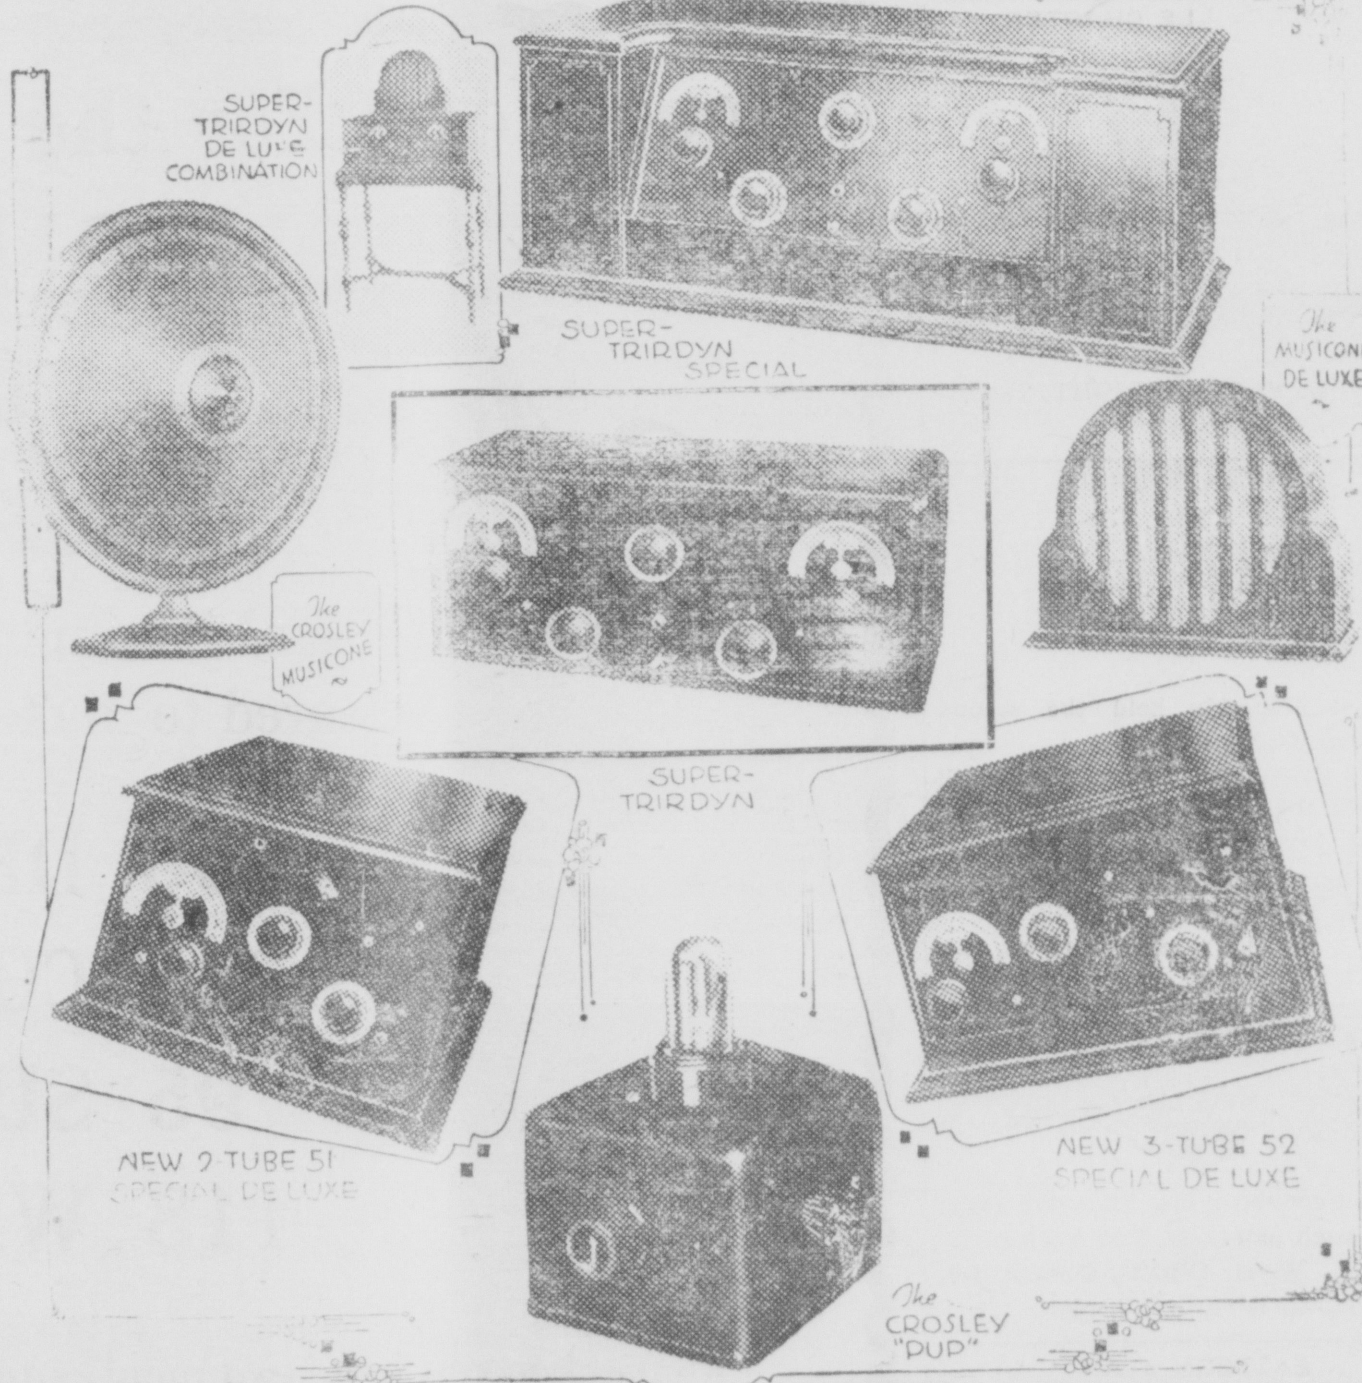

Your horse is wise, and charges after the retreating meteor like a flash. As he comes alongside, you make a high dive from the saddle, grasping the steer's horns about an inch and a quarter from the base. Now is the time to dig your heels in, spit out the gravel and dust, and set yourself to haze the steer. If you can stop him. You bend his horns across your stomach to throw him off center, and he flops.

If you can do all this, and lay your steer flat, in the space of seven seconds from the time you crossed the white line, you've equalled the world's record. Hook 'im cow!

Buck Lucas, Del Bledsoe, Mike Hastings, Frank McCarroll, Jim Massey, Lee Robinson, and many other famous steer wrestlers will perform at the Chicago Rodeo. They have all been champions one year or another, and are out to break records and pick up new laurels this season.

NEW MODELS OF RADIO RECEIVERS FOR 1926

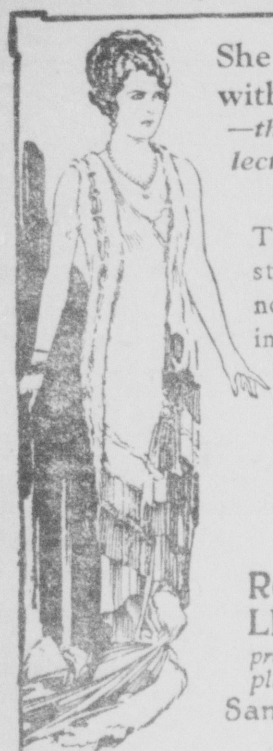

Fashions change; even in radio receivers. The models for 1926 shown here, have been designed to meet the ever-growing demand for efficient receivers in attractive cabinets. And, who is responsible for new fashions? The answer is—the women: especially where equipment is to be placed in living rooms want radio receivers to harmonize with decorative scheme of the rooms in which they are placed.

No radical changes have been made, however, in the circuits used in the above apparatus. There have been many improvements made, including the triodyn circuit which makes it possible for three vacuum tubes to do the work of double that number in other circuits.

receivers is found in the ample space provided in the cabinet for dry-cell type batteries. A mahogany cabinet has been designed to house the musicone reproducer, while a console table and receiver make it possible to assemble a beautiful combination radio set. The "pup" is only 3 3/4 inches high, the smallest single-tube regenerative receiver made.

Columbus.—Ohio farm leaders met here Monday under auspices of the state farm bureau federation to discuss important agricultural problems. The farmers attending represented 41 per cent of the state agricultural industry, using cooperative methods. Products valued at $80,000,000 were marketed by these interests during the year.

Columbus.—Ohio is mostly a state of fourths.

Ohio is fourth among the states in population; fourth in the total value of dairy products and fourth in volume of milk produced.

It is third in gallons of ice cream produced; sixth in pounds of butter produced, and 15th in average production per cow.

Toledo.—Four persons were killed and a dozen injured in traffic accidents in this section over the weekend. The dead are:
Mrs. Angela Petros and daughter, Helen, 7; Mrs. Isaac Eckert, 75 and Horace Conklin, 19.

Origin of Chapels

The word chapel comes from cap, a chest. The word was originally applied to the chest in which the relics of a saint were deposited, afterwards to the apartment in a church or cathedral in which the chest was kept. These chapels were dedicated separately, but were known by the name of the saint whose relics they contained.

Joys of Spring

More than 100,000 people joined in ceremonies celebrating the Setsubun, or advent of spring. Buddhist families revived the ceremony of driving out the devil, which consists of throwing roasted peas in their homes and shouting, "Out with the devil."

Their Escape

"The bank was robbed just before I got to town," stated Farmer Fumblegate upon his return from the county seat. "I met the robbers escaping in a motorcar, as I was about to turn into the new road."

"My goodness!" ejaculated Mrs. Fumblegate. "What did you do?" "I driv' right along without knowing who they were. When I saw men acting crazy and running about I inquired what the matter was, and was told of the robbery. They said that just as the robbers clumb into their car Constable Slackputter began to sneeze, and the robbers were four miles away as the crow flies before he could get his mouth shut."—Kansas City Star.

WINTER SUPPLY OF FUEL THREATENED

ANTHRACITE COAL STRIKE MAY AFFECT PRICES HERE

No Solution Between Miners and Operators Seen With Only Two Weeks for Agreement--Work Rushed At Pits To Store Supply--Owners Are Afraid of Public Boycott If Prices Are Raised.

Only two weeks remains before the country is to know definitely whether it is again to suffer interruption of its supply of hard coal for winter stove and furnace by a suspension in the 828 hard coal mines in northeastern Pennsylvania on the part of 158,000 mine workers.

Sunday night at respective headquarters of operators and miners now at loggerheads over renewal of the wage contract expiring August 31, no sign appeared of early reconciliation.

Tests of sentiment of various leaders indicate neither side is disposed to resume soon the negotiations broken off August 5, in Atlantic City.

The United Mine Workers "do not work without a contract," they say.

Since the break at the seashore both operators and miners have even entrenched themselves in their announced opposition to each other. Operators have reiterated the danger of public boycott if they let the price of hard coal go any higher. They have repeated that this prevents their assenting to any terms in the new contract, such as the request for a 10 per cent wage increase for contract miners and $1 a day additional for eleven-day workers, which would in any way increase present production cost.

As to the men's demand for the "check-off" the operators have said again in unmistakable terms they are equally adamant on this concession.

During the last week an announcement from a miners source disclosed that the union at present would not accept the government as a peace-maker unless prepared to consider its troubles in soft coal fields as well.

Operators seized upon this as support of their belief that the union all along had meant to make some settlement of the bituminous coal overproduction problem the price of peace after September 1. This in turn drew official denial from the union.

With the outlook unsettled the anthracite coal trade and public are reported to be taking emergency precautions.

Work at the mines is proceeding at top speed, in order to store up every extra pound of coal possible in advance of any unlooked for developments a fortnight hence.

Anthracite carrying roads indicate increasingly heavy shipments of this commodity, particularly to outlying sections of the consuming territory where any cessation in supply would be felt the first.

Meanwhile augmented fleets of retail coal trucks rushing bulging loads to householders' cellars and to the "coal pockets" of large industrial users are reported familiar sights on the streets of larger eastern cities.

ROY CRISSINGER DROWNS.

Roy Crissinger, the eleven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crissinger, of Columbus, formerly of this city, lost his life in the Scioto river last Thursday while in swimming. The body was not recovered until Friday. The funeral services were held Saturday. Mrs. William Crissinger and Philip Crissinger and son, Isaac, of this city, attended the funeral.

Captain W. B. Davis, of Williamsport, went to Columbus today to visit his wife at Grant hospital, where she has been a patient for several weeks recovering from a fractured hip. He expects to take her home this week.

MYKRANTZ TO GET CONTROL DRUG STORES

Dollings Subsidiary Sold to Morris Resler Year Ago are Repurchased.

The chain of Mykrantz drug stores, consisting of 27 retail dispensaries, most of which are in Columbus, was purchased by Frank F. Mykrantz and his two sons, F. M. and J. M. Mykrantz, from Morris Resler.

Details of the transaction, which was closed, were not made known, but it is understood the consideration was considerably in excess of the $125,000 which Resler paid in obtaining the properties from the receivers of the Mykrantz Co. Dollings subsidiary, less than a year ago.

Mr. Mykrantz said the policy of the concern will not be changed. He has been in charge of the stores for 10 years, having been president of the company under the Dollings regime and being retained in a similar capacity when Resler took over the concern.

REPUBLICAN CLUB PICNIC OLENTANGY

Congressman Theodore Burton Principal Speaker at Celebration.

The Buckeye Republican club will picnic August 27, at Olentangy park, Columbus, and its members are preparing their plans with a view to a big celebration.

President Charles C. Norris, Secretary Joseph E. Cross, County Chairman Harry C. Arnold and Colonel W. H. Everybody will be invited and the picnic will be made the means of fostering Republican ideals and ambitions of interest and importance in the Ohio political arena.

The chief speaker is expected to be Congressman Theodore E. Burton, of Cleveland, who will give information acquired during his recent European trip. Senators Fess and Willis and the entire congressional delegation of Ohio, together with the legislative membership also have been invited.

Congressman Burton is a member of the Buckeye Republican club and was one of the first among the Republican leaders of Ohio to advocate a central political club house. The congressman will discuss the plans, the possibilities and advantages and on this promise the club will start its building and expansion activities.

A GREAT SHOW.

Few Ohio people realize that more than 5,000 head of livestock will be shown at the Diamond Jubilee anniversary of state fair, August 31 to September 5. In fact, this total was exceeded last year, when 235 head of horses were shown, 1600 cattle, 1500 swine and 2,000 sheep.

OLD STUDENTS TAKE AWARDS IN COLLEGE

Columbus, O., Aug. 17 (UP).—More men and women past 30 are attending Ohio State university since the state law requires higher standards for teachers' certification.

The increase in enrollment is principally in the college of education and the graduate school, according to figures from the registrar's office.

No increase greater than the proportional growth was noted in the rest of the university devoted to the professions and science.

As a result of this registration of the older students, scholarship awards are being made almost entirely to the older students.

HONEY YIELD IS LARGEST IN HISTORY

Delphos, O., Aug. 17—Ohio beekeepers held their annual field meeting here today at Waterworks park.

SAILORS IDLE SCHOOL BOYS TAKE PLACES

Cleveland, O., Aug. 17 (UP).—Lives of sailors and ships are being endangered on Lake Erie for the sake of economy, E. J. Sullivan, secretary of the Lake Seamen's union charged today.

In order to save a few hundred dollars in ship operation each month ship owners employ inexperienced college boys as deck hands and water tenders. They are worked twelve hours a day and seven days a week in lieu of the eight hour shift of the regular seamen.

As a result of this system, Sullivan charged 2000 sailors are idle in Cleveland this season.

THIS IN OHIO THINK TEDDY IS PRESIDENT

Peddler Told Old Men About World War, But They Did Not Believe it.

Deputy Sheriff John Furber called at a secluded home in an isolated farm in central Belmont county late Friday and met two elderly men who told him in the course of a conversation they believed Theodore Roosevelt was still president of the United States.

"Teddy is a great man," one remarked, "and the only time we ever expect to leave this farm is to vote for him."

The deputy sheriff was amazed to hear the men profess never to have seen an automobile which he tried to describe to them. He was riding a horse over the briar-clogged farm when he came upon the pair.

They also told him they had never seen an electric light, hearing with open mouthed wonder about electricity and then declaring with finality they did not believe "light kin go thru a wire."

The shabbily dressed pair said they had no desire for human companionship and they scoffed at the idea of visiting a city, which they held to be the works of the devil.

The nearest neighbor, who lives a mile away, said he had never more than "passed the time of day with them." The two said they lived solely on the products of their farm.

Asked if they had heard about the world war, they said a peddler had told them something about it years ago, but they thought he was making himself interesting and paid no attention to his story.

BIG MERGER OF COAL COMPANIES IS ANTICIPATED

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 14.—(UP.)—Developments in the proposed $500,000,000 merger of West Virginia-Kentucky coal companies hinged today upon a coal operators' conference underway in New York City.

J. E. Johnson, secretary of the Hazard Coal Operators' Exchange, which proposed the consolidation, said the New York conferences were expected to make some definite announcement tonight.

The consolidation, broached for economic reasons, would involve valuable bituminous and anthracite properties with an annual production of 150,000,000 tons and employing thousands of men.

Johnson has mailed questionnaires to the operators asking them to ratify or reject the plan. Unanimous approval was expected, he said.

W. D. Dudley, president of the Kentucky River Coal Company, is presiding over the New York conference.

PROPER FOOD FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

The age during which children are attending school—may aptly be called "The Dangerous Age." It is the period of rapid growth and every care should be taken to insure the child of a normal and healthy body. The idea of eating only fit and wholesome foods should be early impressed on the younger members of every family in order to protect them against later ill health and its accompanying unhappiness. If the utmost care is not taken in the diet that is used by children cases of food poisoning, indigestion and kindred ailments may result.

And milk, being the chief item in the diets of most children, should be carefully guarded. It is, because of its nature, prone to infection if exposed to germs and may soon become unfit for use. Wherever there is the slightest reason for doubt as to its purity and food value, steps should be taken to insure the sterility and the fitness of milk intended for consumption by children. Many mothers have adopted the excellent practice of using milk that is absolutely pure and sterile and free from any germs or bacteria. The most satisfactory, as well as the safest milk used in preparing food for the growing child is evaporated milk.

It is sterile, and therefore safe. It is more digestible than market milk. Its uniformity, convenience and cost are qualities that recommend it.

The following dishes are well suited to the needs of the growing child; they are easily digested and very nourishing:

Caramel Custard.

1 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1 cup water 3 eggs 1/4 cup sugar (caramelized) 2 tbsp. sugar 1/4 tsp. salt 1/4 tsp. vanilla

Scald the diluted milk. Caramelize the sugar and add to milk to dissolve. Beat eggs slightly, add sugar, salt, and vanilla and combine with scalded milk. Pour into custard cups and set in a pan of hot water and cook in a moderate oven. When done, a knife blade run in the center will come out clean.

Fish Chowder.

1 pint raw fish cut in 1-inch dice 5 small potatoes, sliced 2 onions chopped fine 1/4 pound fat salt pork, sliced 3 cups boiling water 1 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1 cup water 6 crackers

Fry out the salt pork. When brown, remove pieces of pork and put fish, potatoes, and onions in kettle. Cover with boiling water. Simmer until potatoes are tender. Add the milk and cook 5 minutes longer. Season with salt and pepper. Just before serving add the crackers.

KEEPING WELL

RAT-BITE FEVER

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

RAT bites are not common in this country. Although the rat population is said to be at least as large, if not larger than the human, the two apparently come together seldom. In the country, where numerous rats are found under barns, corn cribs and wood sheds, and where children go barefoot at least part of the year, rat bites are probably much more frequent than is usually supposed.

In Japan, where the houses are of loose construction, where every one sleeps on mats on the floor and where many of the people go barefooted all the year round, rat bites are much more common than in this country. The doctors in Japan have found that there is a definite disease which may be gotten from a rat bite, just as hydrophobia can be gotten from a dog bite. They call it sodoku.

Any kind of a bite, so far as the wound is concerned is like any other kind of a stabbing or tearing wound. Its seriousness depends largely on the kind of a weapon that makes it. A stab wound with a new, clean, bright knife is not as dangerous as the same wound made with an old, jagged, dirty knife. But animals' teeth are seldom clean. Our old English saying is "as clean as a hound's tooth." But hounds or any other kinds of dogs very seldom have clean teeth. They may have hydrophobia, if they have been bitten by a mad dog. Even if they do not have this worst of dog diseases, they have in their mouths and on their teeth germs of various kinds, which stay in the wound and produce infection, causing pain, swelling and sometimes fever.

Rats also generally have some kind of germ in their mouths, so that the rat bites usually become infected and may cause fever. In about ten to twenty days after the bite, the patient, often a child, will complain of headache, weakness and muscular pains. The bite, even if it has apparently healed, becomes swollen, painful and a reddish blue color. The glands or "kernels" nearest the bite become swollen and tender. If the bite is on the foot, the glands in the groin are swollen; if on the hands, the glands in the arm pit. Fever, nausea, vomiting follow and, in severe cases, the child may become delirious. The fever lasts several days, then disappears for from two to six days and reappears. A bluish red rash appears on the body. The disease may last weeks or months. Most cases eventually recover. Treatment consists in cauterizing the bite with carbolic acid and in the injection of arsenamine.

HOPI INDIANS BOW AT VENUS' SHRINE

Idol Called "Talatumsi, Elder Sister of the Dawn."

Venus, goddess of the ancient Romans, is venerated also by the modern Hopi Indians of the American Southwest, though in a guise that would hardly be recognized by her classic votaries. Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, chief of the bureau of American ethnology, tells of this interesting cult in his account of the use of idols in Hopi worship, in the forthcoming annual report of the Smithsonian institute at Washington.

She is known to the Indians as Talatumsi, the Elder Sister of the Dawn. Her image, rudely carved of wood, and wrapped in a ceremonial blanket, is enshrined in a hollowed-out boulder with a flat rock, sealed in with clay for a door. This door is removed in November every fourth year, when the idol is taken out and carried to the top of the mesa and rites performed near it. The image is regarded with special reverence, and except for the quadrennial service, is kept securely sealed in its shrine.

The image of Talatumsi is only one of the many sacred objects of the Hopi. Unlike the Indians of the eastern United States, who made few images, these natives of the desert make and reverence numerous idols, though they do not regard them as gods but only as images of the gods above the cloud or under the earth. Some of the idols are simple natural objects, like pieces of petrified log or meteoric stones; others are more or less elaborately carved animal or human figures of wood or stone. Many of the stone images are very old, and are held in especial awe.

Doctor Fewkes is of the opinion that the custom of carving was not much developed until after the coming of the Spanish padres. Though the Indians declined to be converted, they adopted the idea of having statues in their own holy places, in addition to the simpler natural objects they had revered before that time.

Many of the images are used by the shamans, or medicine men, in exorcising disease. One type of idol, called a "heart twister," is used when the trouble is supposed to be located in the heart. Most of the heart twisters are made of stone or wood, deeply carved in a spiral pattern, but there is at least one in use among the Hopi that is made of a fossil sea shell.—From Science Service.

Obsession of Death

Made Empires Great

We have taken a brief and cursory glance at a civilization (Egyptian) which, though its qualities were but mediocre, endured for more than four thousand years. It is, with that of China, the longest that history has ever known. For 40 centuries, while the rest of the world was given over to barbarism, massacre, brigandage, rapine and monstrous disorder, it procured for the people who lived under it a happiness and tranquillity, security and peace that might well be envied by the people of today who rank among the most fortunate.

What were the forces that kept this civilization together? Obviously and above all, the priestly oligarchy that held the reins, an oligarchy of wise and thoughtful men who jealously guarded their secret; while above them were kings not only by divine right but actually divine, the monarch not being merely the representative of the god on earth, but the god himself, and so comcomerately and actually god that not one, himself to begin with, for one instant doubted his divinity, of which he was so sincerely, so deeply convinced that he worshipped his own image and did it obeisance.

But there were other peoples who were governed by prudent oligarchies and kings who held themselves to be gods, and that nevertheless did not last long. In the Egyptian people, as in the Chinese, side by side with the divine authority that strengthened the social edifice from its base to its crown there existed a certain force that never left them, an authority humbler than the other but more effective, inasmuch as it permeated, saturated, the entire organism; and this was the obsession of death and the adoration of the corpse. Strangely enough, wherever the thought of death is uppermost, persistent, and paramount, life takes a firmer grip, quickens, multiplies, flourishes. The two civilizations that endured the longest, that were the most stable and tranquil of all that are known to us, had the same ideal: a coffin.—Maurice Maeterlinck, in the Forum.

Darned Sock Passes

A Detroit laundryman offers what he says is the final bit of conclusive evidence that the present generation is decadent and that modern family life is demoralized.

"You don't see many darned socks in a laundry any more," he said. "If you counted the comparative number of holes in the stockings that have come in here over a period of years and plotted the totals in statistical curves you would have an exact barometer of the spread of feminism."

"Seriously speaking, the passing of the darned sock does indicate the arrival of a new period of domestic economy. Any laundryman will testify that the silk age has come to stay. Judy O'Grady and the colonel's lady now wear the same thing to their skin."—Detroit News.

CHICKEN MITE
SIZE OF PINHEAD,
GRAYISH-RED
ATTACK POULTRY
AT NIGHT ONLY

By A. J. GUNDERSON
(Research Bureau—Pesticide Division,
The Sherwin-Williams Co.)

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost each season in the poultry business by the ravages of great hordes of chicken mites, stick-tight fleas and blue-bugs in chicken coops. When once these fellows gain any definite headway it is almost impossible to stop them without destroying the entire flock and house. On this account numerous poultry raisers, according to government statistics, have been forced to discontinue business with large financial losses.

These parasites of the chicken house thrive during the hot summer months when chickens are in or entering the moulting period. They cause slow and stunted growth as well as death in young chickens and reduced flesh and egg production in mature birds.

Method of Attack

Chicken mites are small grayish red mites about the size of a pin-head when filled with blood. They hide away during the day in cracks and crevices throughout the hen house migrating to the roosting birds at night to suck blood.

Stick-tight fleas are small, flat-sided, hard bodied creatures that appear as dark areas about the eyes, comb and wattles. Fowl-ticks or blue-bugs are closely related to mites but are always larger, easily seen and have a thick, leathery skin. They are flat, egg-shaped and dark brown in color. These parasites are essentially the same as those of the chicken mite.

How to Kill Pests

Fortunately these parasites can be exterminated from poultry houses and coops by the use of carbolic-oil applied as a spray, or painted on. The first step is to burn all boxes, coops and boards. Burn old nesting material and clean out the floor and poosts. Then apply a heavy drenching spray or heavy brushing of carbolic-oil. This oil soaks into the wood without leaving a greasy residue to soil the feet, feathers and eggs of the birds.

Poultry parasites are hardy and can live from four to five months after chickens have been removed from the hen houses unless a strong destroyer is applied.

Night Air Beneficial

Night air is especially healthful. In spite of the theories of our grandparents, it is just as healthful as day air. It is even more purifying, for it is less laden with dust and humidity. Cold air, moreover, according to recent experiments, has been found to be even more health-giving than warm air.

Duck Refuge

The Winneshiek bottom preserve is a 300-acre tract of land along the Mississippi river. Congress in 1924 passed a law preserving this land from drainage for a breeding and feeding place for ducks. There have been two or three instances where land in this vicinity has been drained for agricultural purposes and found absolutely useless. It was through the efforts of the Izaak Walton league that this land was preserved.

Poor Spellers, Take Heart.

The poor speller should receive comfort from the recent words of a professor of English in a local university. "The perfect speller is born, not made," he said. "One frequently finds persons of great erudition who have trouble spelling such a simple word, for example, as 'rabbit.' Certain others seem to have a gift for spelling, even without a knowledge of the rules to guide them. Why that is, I cannot say. It is closely akin, I think, to what is known as an ear for music or a peculiarly retentive memory for figures. I dare say it can even be inherited. Spelling is one case in which education plays but a minor part."—New York Sun.

Printer's Errors

There is a story of a German printer's wife who surreptitiously altered the passage that her husband should be (Herr) lord so as to make him be her fool. Perhaps the best of all printers' errors was that in which a printer had to announce to the world that intoxication is folly, and altered it into the more genial statement that "Intoxication is jolly." Theodore Beza was stated to have gone to sea in a Canadian vessel. The printer altered this to "Canadian" vessel. There is also that reference to the "battle-scarred warrior," which became "bottle-scarred warrior!"

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture.
It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery.

Log as Motor Vehicle

"Around the World in a Log" was the unique title of a motor vehicle which passed through Cascade Locks, Ore., recently, on a world tour to advertise the Pacific coast, says the Portland Oregonian. The body of the car was a huge Douglas fir which had been cut, bored and hewed by the men in charge, C. E. Cave and J. A. Nutter. After this preliminary work they spent 13 months in equipping it into a modern apartment. The log or car is 22 feet long and 7 feet 7 inches in diameter, and scaled 8,716 feet of lumber.

The car is equipped with electric lights, hot and cold water, shower bath, beds, a breakfast table and built-in seats, a sink and built-in kitchenette and also built-in dressers and linen closets and even a library. The truck, including the body, weighs 14,000 pounds. The men in charge expect to go to New York by way of Salt Lake city and Omaha and Chicago. Before returning to Oregon they will tour Mexico, Central America and Canada.

A LOVER OF NATURE

"What we need," said the loudly-dressed woman, "is to get closer to nature. We have too much artificiality. For my part I simply adore nature. That's why I got my husband to buy a country place."

"But you didn't go there last summer?"

"Oh, dear, no; certainly not. We won't be able to go there for two or three years yet. It will require all that time for the landscape gardener to get it in shape for us."

It was the third time the hawk had descended the area steps, and Matilda, the kitchen maid, had half consented to buy a watch. SARGASSO IS SEA OF MANY SECRETS

Expedition Will Explore Mysterious Region.

As if an enormous giant had put his finger into the sea and stirred it round, the entire North Atlantic ocean slowly revolves in the direction of the clock's hands.

In the center is the Sargasso sea, a gigantic collection of floating islands, made of seaweed and inhabited by countless living things.

Nobody knows how Herodotus, in ancient times, came by the alarming stories he told of this mysterious region, for it is only during recent years that it has been properly charted.

When Columbus and his men were drawn into this oval-shaped vortex, his ship remained out of control for 15 days, and the crew thought they were condemned to perish in a watery prison, closely guarded by seaweed barriers for 200,000 square miles. But a strong wind luckily carried the ship to safety.

Supported in the water by small air balloons, the feathery weeds of Sargasso are mostly olive-brown in color, with blotches of white. The chief source of supply has been proved to be the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea.

Sailors do not like this strange tract which floats, almost like land, on the bosom of the Atlantic. It is reputed to be the home of barbarous fish and the hiding place of mysterious monsters. Animals drifting about on the surface of the sea, with only the scattered cover of moving seaweed, are exposed to many dangers, not only from the birds always hovering above, but from hungry fish lurking in the patches of uncovered sea, which is the bluest in the world.

To protect themselves, all the living creatures imitate, in a remarkable way, the color of their floating home. One grotesque little animal is conspicuous owing to the disproportionate size of its head and jaws, and resembles the frog fish, sometimes seen near British coasts.

Making its nest of seaweed bound together by long cords of its own manufacture, this singular creature combines all the characteristics of an animal, a fish, and a bird.

A short-failed crab of the shell-less type swarms on the Sargasso weed and is blotched with white to match the light patches on its surroundings. These and many more peculiar creatures will be examined by Professor Beebe, of New York, who recently set out to explore this little-known region.

A secret ambition of the expedition is to capture a monster squid, a terrifying fish of the cuttlefish family, with black eyes at least 12 inches in diameter and a body 80 feet in length. The body of these giants, one of which the explorers hope to capture, is wrapped in a loose mantle, from an opening in which emerges the evil-looking head with its sharp, parrot-like beak.

This Sargasso monster is the tiger of the ocean, and, like its striped counterpart on land, is said to kill even when not hungry—for the sheer pleasure of killing.

Victoria Invested Wisely

Through the good advice of Disraeli, her chief adviser, Queen Victoria of England, invested in Suez canal stock and was thus enabled eventually to leave additional millions to her children. She also was one of the original owners of a share in the New River Water company which provided the water supply for London. The water shares, originally worth a pound ($5), enhanced in value to where they were worth millions, and even the richest of others like the Rothschilds were forced to be content later with a sixteenth or a thirty-second of a share.

Quake Made Trouble

All was peaceful and quiet Saturday night in the Springfield police station when Patrolman Clark, who was entering something in the police blotter, suddenly shouted: "For the love of Mike, Mitchell, stop shaking the table. How do you suppose I can write?" Patrolman Mitchell indignantly denied that he was shaking the table and accused Clark of being responsible. The argument was waxing warm, with each denying and accusing, when the telephone rang and gave them their first inkling that an earthquake was the cause of the table's strange behavior.—Boston Globe.

China's Trade in Bones

For many years, the economical Chinese have put animal bone to good use for various ornamental and practical articles and for fertilizer, but the traffic in this commodity in recent times has greatly increased so that now they are said to be importing large quantities. During the first six months of 1923 Shanghai alone imported nearly 1,500 tons of cow bone valued at more than $238,000, principally for tile-game makers. In 1922, China exported more than $1,000,000 worth of bone.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

PLANNING TO MEET IN PARIS IN 1927

Holding of the proposed national convention of the American Legion in Paris, France, in 1927 was brought several steps nearer reality, it was indicated at national headquarters of the Legion at Indianapolis, following important recent developments in the matter.

The Trunk Line Passenger association has offered to grant to all Legionnaires a round-trip ticket from any point in America to the port of embarkation for a one-way fare, John J. Wicker, Jr., of Richmond, Va., chairman of the France convention travel committee, predicts that other railroad associations will follow suit.

Assurances have been received through diplomatic channels that the French government will welcome Legionnaires with sincere pleasure, Mr. Wicker has reported. Word has come from officials of Paris post of the Legion that the people and officials of the city of Paris will co-operate to make the gathering a success.

The last week in September, 1927, has been recommended by the committee as the best time for holding the convention. Final decision in the matter rests with the national convention, the governing body of the Legion.

At the meeting at which Mr. Wicker made his report to the national executive committee, Garland W. Powell, director of the National Americanism commission of the Legion, presented his resignation. Mr. Powell, who became assistant director in 1921 and director in 1922 took the lead in campaigns for employment of veterans in 1921, for restricted immigration, for better education in all its phases, for Americanization work, against illiteracy, against revolutionary radicalism and extreme pacifism. He conducted the American education weeks and the Legion's national essay contests.

Mr. Powell, whose home is at Cumberland, Md., and who was a captain pilot in the American aviation forces, resigned to become identified with the organization and administration of Woodrow Wilson Memorial university at Valdosta, Ga.

Frank Clay Cross, of the faculty of the Colorado School of Mines at Golden, Colo., succeeded Mr. Powell. He achieved fame through the nationally known "opportunity school" in Denver. He was chairman of the Americanism committee of the department of Colorado during the past year. He served overseas for 14 months.

At the same meeting adequate provision in the federal budget for maintaining the naval ratio of 5-5-3 fixed by the Washington conference was urged. Provision for the proper defense of the Hawaiian islands by fortifying them and improving Pearl Harbor and also for an increase of 4,000 in the enlisted personnel of the navy was recommended by the naval affairs committee of the Legion, headed by E. E. Spafford of New York.

In a report submitted by Reed G. Landis of Chicago for the aeronautics committee and adopted by the executive committee, support was pledged to Postmaster General Harry S. New in his reported refusal to contract for airplane mail service between the United States and South America with any company financed by foreign capital or financed by subjects of foreign countries. Germans are financing and operating a concern which has been attempting to obtain such a contract between Key West, Fla., and South America, according to information laid before the committee.

Honored Former Foe

For the first time in the history of the country, it is believed, American Legionnaires recently buried with full military honors a German soldier who fought against them in 1918 on the battlefields of France. This took place at Fairmont, Minn. Military rites, a firing squad and taps were accorded to Irvin Hoffman, who was drafted by the kaiser in 1918 when he was attending school at the age of fourteen. Tuberculosis resulting from privations and shrapnel wounds caused Hoffman to come to this country some months ago. He died at the age of twenty-one.

"Any man who gave his life for his country, no matter what country, is entitled to the tribute accorded a soldier," declared O. M. Merry, Fairmont post commander, who arranged the military funeral.

To Plan for Convention

A. H. Richardson, president of a prominent oil company in Nebraska, is the new general chairman of the committee planning for the 1925 national convention of the American Legion to be held in Omaha, October 5 to 9. Richardson was chosen to succeed the late Everett Buckingham at a recent meeting of the convention committee.

THE RHYTHMATS
Too much can not be said of The Rhythmats, the wonderful orchestra that played for the C. A. C. jitney dance last Saturday night. This orchestra, composed of eight splendid musicians, all artists, and headed by their director, Paul H. Kleinke, entertained the dancers as they have not been entertained in Circleville for a long time. Playing all the latest and newest dance selections in perfect time and rhythm, their excellent music was thoroughly enjoyed by all in attendance. It was a rare treat for dance lovers and spectators.

About three hundred people danced to The Rhythmats' perfect music, visitors were there from all the surrounding towns. The C. A. C. dance committee has been very fortunate in securing this orchestra for a return engagement, they will play here again on the night of Tuesday, September 1, for the big Carnival dance to be given especially for the young people who will soon begin to leave for their different schools and colleges.

AMUSEMENTS

While holding all of the intense dramatic appeal of the stage play, the screen version of "Cheaper to Marry" which is now playing at the Met theater, is far more colorful than Samuel Shipman's original story.

This is because the motion picture takes advantage of wired latitudes, and Robert Z. Leonard, in making this picturization for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has brought a lavish production of society and near society life to the screen.

In addition to an exceptional cast, Leonard brings into this film noted dancers for his cafe scenes, and fifty of the most beautiful bathing girls in California to the sequence devoted to showing intimate happenings in an exclusive women's athletic club. Limitations of the speaking stage made such elaborate settings impossible.

The cast includes Lewis S. Stone, Conrad Nagel, Paulette Duval, Marguerite de la Motte, Louise Fazenda, Claude Gillinkwater and Richard Wayne. As the cynical Jim Knight, who does not believe in marriage, Lewis Stone adds to his fame as an actor. Paulette Duval of "Monsieur Beaucaire" fame, is seen as a modern vampire for the first time, gowned in beautiful creations and jewels. Conrad Nagel always a capable actor, plays his role with rare accomplishment, as does Miss de la Motte, seen opposite Nagel for the first time.

The comedy is handled most admirably by Louise Fazenda and Mr. Gillinkwater, while Richard Wayne is the "other man" in the love affair between Mr. Stone and Miss Duval. Frederick and Fanny Hatton are given credit for bringing this powerful Shipman indictment against social radicalism to the screen without a change in the original plot. Alice D. G. Miller did the continuity.

DISCOVERED AGAIN
(This claim is now made that a China man discovered America one thousand years before Columbus.)
A paleolithic person found, Ten million years ago, this date, That he could walk on solid ground Across the Bering Strait, Southward he wandered to a clime Where flowers grew and birdies hovered; America, about that time I reckon, was discovered.

Eon on era wheeled and passed With various topographic changes; Here sank the land, and there it massed
In mighty mountain ranges. And then, a million years ago, Some people wandered out of Spain And strolling into Mexico Discovered us again.

Invading mound builders drove out The cave men; then the Mayas came And put these ancient tribes to rout— It was an endless game, Black men and brown discovered it, And red men brought them both to woe— The yellow peril had its bit A thousand years ago.

And then there was a Nordic blond That came from Iceland o'er the sea Then Colon came from where beyond The Alps lies Italy. And yet we raise a merry din And fatuously pick and probe The most discovered country in The well-known globe!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HOME TOWN NEWS.
What the editor said: So old Jeems is dead! What a tightwad that bird was. If I live to be a thousand I'll never forget what a tough time I had selling him a few measly inches of ad space. And what a thundering tougher time I had collecting.

What the paper said: It is with a peculiar sense of loss that we this week record the passing of one of Home Town's most distinguished citizens and business men, the Hon. Samuel T. Jeems.

Mr. Jeems was one of the city's solid men. Much good originated with him. Only his peculiar sense of modesty precluded a general knowledge of his benefactions. He preferred to give to all worthy things anonymously.

We shall not soon see his like again.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LOST WHEN THROWN

"Why is he losing ground so in public favor?"
"Isn't he always throwing mud?"

Didn't Exactly Order Speeders to "Desist"

As for Irish yarns—they never cease to beguile the world, Celtic or non-Celtic. A volume of them, such as Henry Robinson's "Further Memories of Irish Life," can always be trusted to furnish examples of the volatile or inconsistent spirit—according to the viewpoint—of the Irish. On the word of Sir Henry, Ireland was a paradise for motorists when motor-ing first became the rage and he proves his contention with a story of an incident watched by himself and Col. Oliver Nugent.

There were two policemen on duty at the roadside, and Nugent asked them what they were doing, as each had a notebook in his hands and wore an air of intense responsibility.

"We're watching out," they said, "for to see that them motorists isn't exceeding the legal limit."

At the time the cars were going "all out" along the level stretch of road, few of them under 40 miles an hour, and many of them far beyond it. Whereupon Nugent, much amused, asked the sergeant what he would do in the possible event of seeing one that appeared to be exceeding the limit.

"We'd order him to desist," said the sergeant.

"But supposing he didn't desist," said Nugent, "what then?"

"We'd arrest him," said the sergeant.

At that moment a roar was heard down the road and a dark-blue torpedo-shaped racer, with driver and mechanic in leather skull-caps, crouching low in their seats, came along at about 70 miles an hour—a flying blur of blue on the highway.

It seemed that here at last was a case where the "order to desist" must inevitably be given. They waited with great curiosity for the result. But not a bit of it!

"Good for ye," yelled the excited constable at the flying car; and the sergeant, making a speaking-trumpet of his hands, shrieked out encouragingly: "Ye're the besht yet!"

Discovery May Mean Much

Dr. Herbert M. Evans, distinguished scientist of the University of California, has made a discovery in glandular nutrition by which he hopes to demonstrate the effect of "vitamine X" in regulating growth and prolonging life. In his research laboratories at Berkeley Doctor Evans has carried out experiments on rats, tadpoles and guinea pigs that have produced startling results. Much attention has been given to the little gland at the base of the brain called the hypophysis, or pituitary gland. In discussing "vitamine X," the scientist said: "We were astonished to find that if we treated animals with this fluid, provided it was not given by the mouth, but under the skin, or in body cavities, where it would not come in contact with the digestive tissues, and was administered daily rather than at infrequent intervals, we could turn normal animals into giants. The next point which arises is just how this will concern the practical problems of human welfare.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Ancient Works of Art

A vase with a secret, a Fifteenth-century Chinese production, with a "secret" design, the only known specimen of the period of the Emperor Hung Chih (1488-1505), has just been acquired by the British museum. It is decorated with green dragons, but the "secret" design, almost invisible at first sight, represents rocks standing out of waves, and was traced very finely and faintly with a needle stylus before the vase was glazed. "There is no special significance so far as I know in these secret designs," said an official of the museum. "It is simply a feature of Chinese art." The carved figure of a bull found in Babylon, and believed to be about 5,000 years old, minus legs, arms and tail, has also been added to the collection. It is thought that it was used for religious purposes.

Death Penalty for Laziness

The Incas were a great agricultural people, and the remains of their canals and aqueducts may be seen in many places along the coasts of Peru.

They had no rich and no poor. The state did everything for its subjects, interfering in all things, even in the affairs of private life. There were three classes—the royal family, the priests, and the people. The chief priest and the head of the army were drawn from the royal house. Every man of twenty-one and every girl of eighteen was compelled to marry. To every child a piece of land was given—a boy getting more than a girl. All the work was done by the people and every person—man, woman, and child—had his or her allotted share of work to do. No one was permitted to be overworked, but no one dare be lazy under penalty of death.

First "Athenaeum"

The "Athenaeum" was a temple in ancient Athens, sacred to Pallas Athene. There the poets and philosophers were accustomed to declaim and recite their compositions. There was also an atheneum at Rome erected by the Emperor Hadrian in 125 A. D. It was founded for the study of poetry and rhetoric, had a regular staff of professors and existed as the Schola Romana until the Fifth century. Similar institutions existed at Constantinople, Lyons and Nimes. The word "atheneum" has been applied in later times to any association or building devoted to literary or artistic pursuits.

NARCOTIC MEN SEIZE GEMS WORTH $50,000

Kitty Gilhooley's Jewels and Col. Beach's Hoard of Odds and Ends Taken.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Jewelry valued at $50,000 was seized today by government agents who opened a safety deposit box leased by Kitty Gilhooley, whose arrest a few days ago led to the seizure of narcotics valued at $150,000. Her arrest also led to the investigation of Colonel Will Gray Beach, chief of narcotic agents here, arrested later for bartering narcotics for various kinds of merchandise, much of it stolen.

The former narcotic chief, out on bond, charged with conspiracy and violation of the anti-narcotic act, declined to comment on the seizure. Mrs. Gilhooley, who has been in jail since special intelligence agents raided her apartment, was released on bonds of $50,000.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milk cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

MR. F. L. FICKARDT:
All spring I have been having trouble with my flock, both young and old. During July I lost about 100. Quite a number had LIMBER NECK or PTOMANE. About August 1st, I began use of your DROPS, and I can say the results fully justified your statements. One case of Limber-Neck was too sick to take the medicine. I gave it some with a dropper, thinking then it was a waste of time, but the next morning it was still around and finally got out and are doing well now.

BEHIND SCREEN
IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Aug. 13.—What's become of Rex Ingram?

The brilliant director of "The Four Horsemen," "Trifling Women" and "The Prisoner of Zenda," threatened, a couple of years ago, to "quit the movies and live on the edge of Sahara."

Hollywood knows Rex hasn't quit the movies because reports come drifting in that the temperamental Irishman is still shooting away at Blasco Ibanez' story, "Marc Nostrum," in which Alice Terry and Tony Moreno have the leads.

Neither is Rex on the edge of the Sahara. Far from it. He is located in the very "wet" regions of Paris and Rome.

But it looks like Ingram is out to outdo "Ben Hur" in length of time in production and costs.

When will Rex come back to Hollywood? When will the picture be finished? Will it be worthy of the Ingram of "The Four Horsemen?"

These are questions bandied about the Club Montmartre, where moviedom congregates at meal times.

Bebe Daniels is back in Hollywood.

Bebe, now one of the highest-salaried stars in the Paramount galaxy, has been brought back to Southern California to get the benefit of the studio organization here. New York has not added materially to Bebe's popularity or fame as a movie idol.

Now William K. Howard has the task of directing Bebe and of developing the long latent talents of the piquant star.

Howard has started shooting on "Martinique," the Lawrence Eyre stage play. It is said the company may go to the South Seas for location.

ORCHARD
COVER CROPS

Cover crops are grown in cultivated orchards to check fall growth of the trees so that the new wood will ripen before freezing and to add humus and nitrogen to the soil and prevent it from washing. Soybeans, vetch, rye and oats proved the best cover crops tested at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Soybeans seeded early in August make a fair growth before frost but are to be preferred as a summer, rather than a fall cover crop. Vetch seeded with rye makes a good winter cover, but must be turned under early the following spring.

Rye alone or with vetch makes one of the best cover crops. The chief objection to rye is that it often makes too much growth before it can be plowed under in the spring, thus robbing the trees of much needed soil moisture.

Wheat can be used in place of rye but makes a smaller growth. Oats seeded about the first of August makes a good growth before frost. Buckwheat is also a satisfactory fall cover crop.

Wow! How They Ride 'Em and Bust 'Em

(Copyright by R. R. Doubleday.)

It's thrilling enough when some hardened buckaroo sets sail on a notorious "outlaw," but when the girls come out of the chutes on the upper story of seasoned buckers—you hold your breath and chew your stick all to shreds, that's all.

Mabel Strickland, Bonnie McCarroll, Fox Hastings, Ruth Roach, Bee Kirnan, Mildred Douglas, Florence Fenton and a lot more of 'em will compete at the Chicago Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo August 15 to 23. They are all real cowhands from the great open spaces where men are more men and women are governors.

Mabel Strickland is the present world's best

around cowgirl. She rides the bronks, ropes the steers and wins her share of the relay races. Sometimes she gets piled—hard. But she takes her chances with the men.

Bonnie McCarroll is the world's champion girl, bronk rider. She won the title at Cheyenne in 1923, at Tex Austin's New York and London Rodeos in '23 and '24, and last year annexed the Gordon Selfridge trophy at London.

The other girls who will be here, according to Tex Austin, director of the Chicago contest, do some performing in the relays, steer riding, trick riding and roping, and bronk riding events, and they are a handful of thrills.

Whoopee! Hook 'Im Cow

(Copyright by R. R. Doubleday.)

Steer bulldogging has been called the most hazardous of sports. As a matter of fact, none of the bulldoggers who will appear at Tex Austin's Chicago Roundup, scheduled for the big Grant Park Stadium August 15 to 23, have complained about life insurance salesmen camping on their trail.

However, it is all very simple. And in case you have a secret hankering to tackle it, here are a few directions: A Texas longhorn is driven into the chute. You stand by on the fastest cow-horse you can find. When the signal is given, the chute door pops open, and out rushes a long, rangy steer composed of concentrated extract of beef and alternating current. The second the critter passes the white line about 20 yards out in front, he's yours. Try and get him!

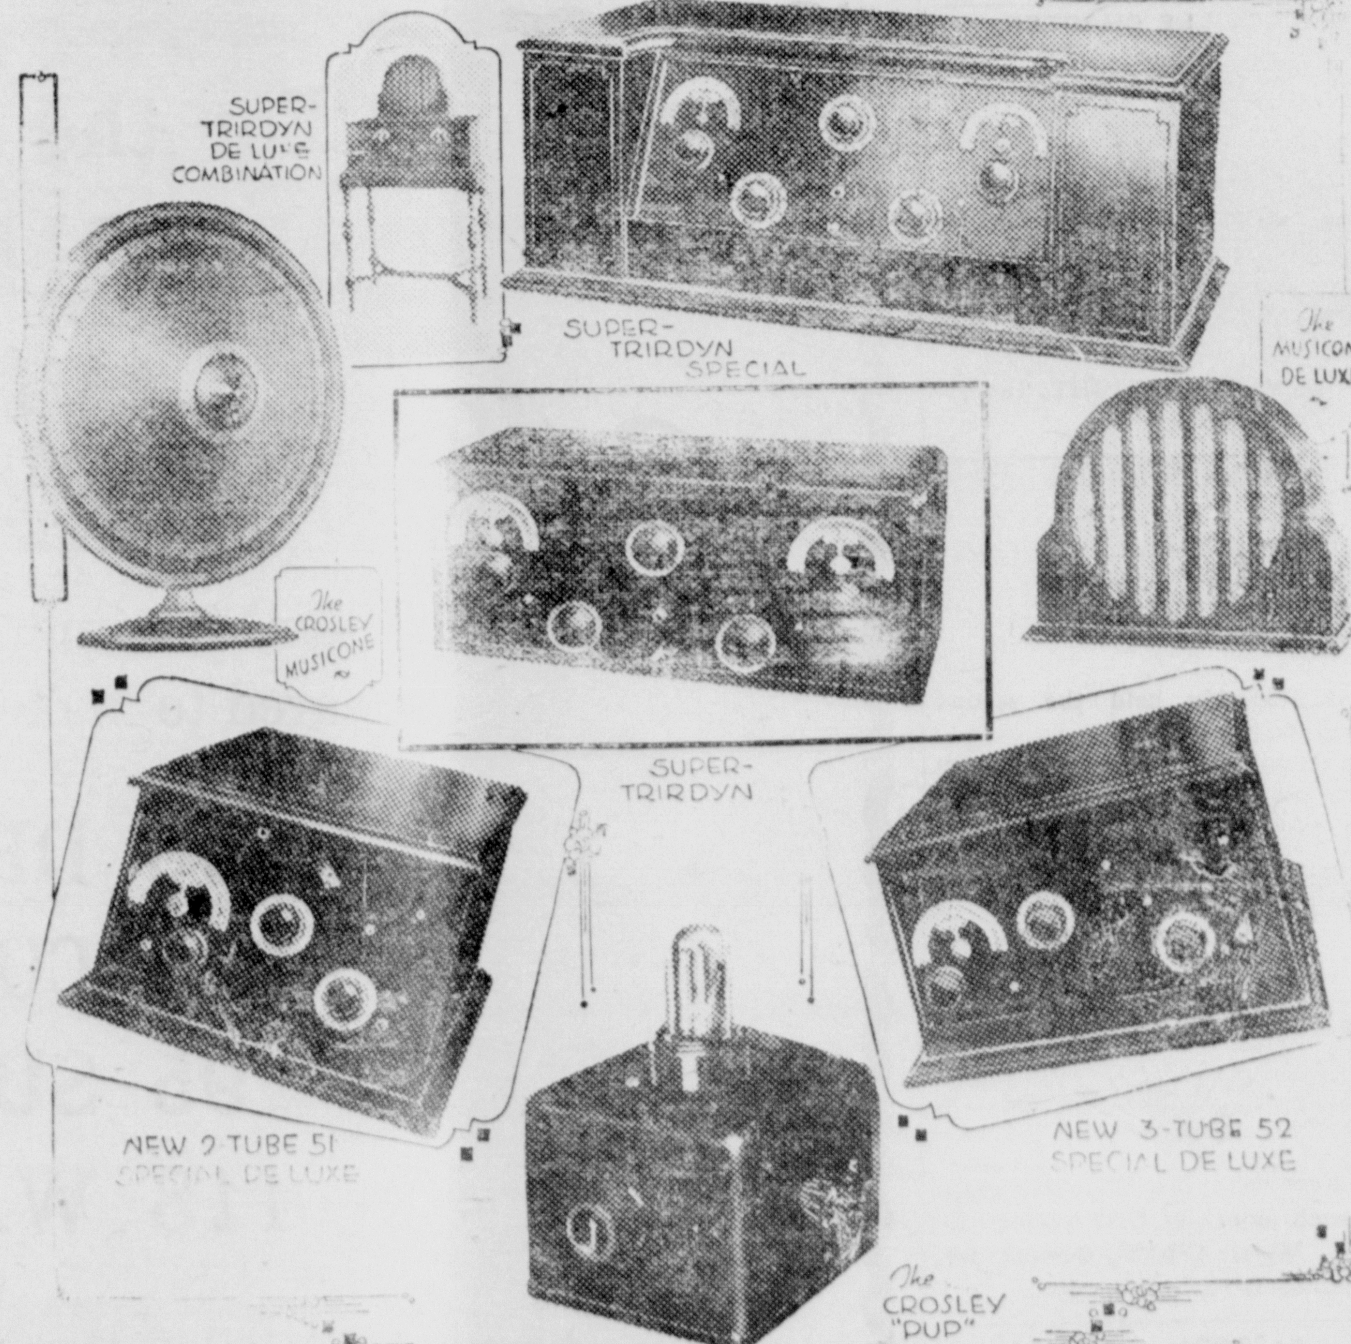

Your horse is wise, and charges after the retreating meteor like a flash. As he comes alongside, you make a high dive from the saddle, grasping the steer's horns about an inch and a quarter from the base. Now is the time to dig your heels in, spit out the gravel and dust, and set yourself to haze the steer, if you can stop him. You bend his horns across your stomach to throw him off center, and he flops.

If you can do all this, and lay your steer flat, in the space of seven seconds from the time you crossed the white line, you've equalled the world's record. Hook 'Im cow!

Buck Lucas, Del Bledsoe, Mike Hastings, Frank McCarroll, Jim Massey, Lee Robinson, and many other famous steer wranglers will perform at the Chicago Rodeo. They have all been champions one year or another, and are out to break records and pick up new laurels this season.

NEW MODELS OF RADIO RECEIVERS FOR 1926

NEW 2-TUBE 51 SPECIAL DE LUXE

NEW 3-TUBE 52 SPECIAL DE LUXE

Fashions change; even in radio receivers. The models for 1926 shown here, have been designed to meet the ever-growing demand for efficient receivers in attractive cabinets. And, who is responsible for new fashions? The answer is—the women: especially where equipment is to be placed in living rooms want radio receivers to harmonize with decorative scheme of the rooms in which they are placed.

No radical changes have been made, however, in the circuits used in the above apparatus. There have been many improvements made, including the tri-dyn circuit which makes it possible for three vacuum tubes to do the work of double that number in other circuits.

And, the new receivers is found in the ample space provided in the cabinet for dry-cell type batteries. A mahogany cabinet has been designed to house the musicone reproducer, while a console table and receiver make it possible to assemble a beautiful combination radio set. The "pup" is only 3 3/4 inches high, the smallest single-tube regenerative receiver made.

Columbus.—Ohio farm leaders met here Monday under auspices of the state farm bureau federation to discuss important agricultural problems. The farmers attending represented 41 per cent of the state agricultural industry, using cooperative methods. Products valued at $80,000,000 were marketed by these interests during the year.

Columbus.—Ohio is mostly a state of fourths.

Ohio is fourth among the states in population; fourth in the total value of dairy products and fourth in volume of milk produced.

It is third in gallons of ice cream produced; sixth in pounds of butter produced, and 15th in average production per cow.

Toledo.—Four persons were killed and a dozen injured in traffic accidents in this section over the week-end. The dead are:
Mrs. Angela Petros and daughter, Helen, 7; Mrs. Isaac Eckert, 75 and Horace Conklin, 19.

Origin of Chapels

The word chapel comes from capa, a chest. The word was originally applied to the chest in which the relics of a saint were deposited, afterwards to the apartment in a church or cathedral in which the chest was kept. These chapels were dedicated separately, but were known by the name of the saint whose relics they contained.

Joys of Spring

More than 100,000 people joined in ceremonies celebrating the Setsubun, or advent of spring. Buddhist families revived the ceremony of driving out the devil, which consists of throwing roasted peas in their homes and shouting, "Out with the devil."

Their Escape

"The bank was robbed just before I got to town," stated Farmer Fumblegate upon his return from the county seat. "I met the robbers escaping in a motorcar, as I was about to turn into the new road."
"My goodness!" ejaculated Mrs. Fumblegate. "What did you do?"
"I driv' right along without knowing who they were. When I saw men acting crazy and running about I inquired what the matter was, and was told of the robbery. They said that just as the robbers clumb into their car Constable Slackputter began to sneeze, and the robbers were four miles away as the crow flies before he could get his mouth shut."—Kansas City Star.

Lighting Earth's Interior

Vieing with the lighting of the Timpanogos cavern in Utah, is the illumination, recently completed, of the Shenandoah caverns of Virginia. Hundreds of electric lights, ranging from 100 to 500 watts, are scattered through the caves, requiring over eight miles of lead cable and a complete generating station, located outside the cave.

X-Rays Remove Corns

Science is coming to the relief of the man with corns. It is now claimed that with a single treatment with X-rays, a large corn can be removed in one piece with no vestige remaining, and leaving a smooth, healthy skin.—Popular Science Monthly.

The dress of today consists of two armholes bounded on the west by nothing whatever, on the east by the same, on the south by hardly anything and on the north by less than that.

The United States today holds practically half the world's monetary gold. Every month for some time has seen a further accumulation until the total August 1, was $4,517,483,901.
